I am a new developer and I am very impressed with your work. I would like to request you to send me your work-I publish it on my website. Please send me your snail mail. I will give you 2% of the revenues for your work. Please contact me from: [Removed by request] I'm writing the world's simplest game in Visual Basic, from start to finish - no art, no music, no nothing. The game is a platformer where you must jump up and down one screen at a time. Pressing the Z key jumps up one screen, and hitting Escape quits the game. The game saves after every 20 seconds, but you must be quick, as it does not handle when you are over-bored and accidentally leave the game.Jungle - Swipe up and left to jump, swipe up and right to hold jump, swipe up and down to run and double jump. I think this is a neat little game. You press J to jump, K to jump over a wall, L to pick up an item, and Escape to quit. I want to implement wall-jumping by having a wall next to the wall that you jump over. I want to also implement throwing items. I can pretty much figure out the rest. This is an extremely simple game. It consists of a maze. The maze consists of 3 rooms. Each room has 12 blocks. To get from the maze to the exit, you need to solve each block puzzle. There are many different types of puzzles to be solved, and more types will be added as you progress. The first one or two puzzles are easy, and for the remainder you need to figure out the pattern of the maze. I hope you enjoy playing this.Jungle - Grasp blocks with the middle mouse button. Jumps over wall. I think this game would be pretty cool for you if you are working on a Flash Game. You see, you would need lots of different picture backgrounds or rooms in your game, and they would need to be in 2D or you will need a lot of work. However, if you have other people working with you on a Flash Game, you can have the different rooms a set as background images and you just change the background of the Stage. And all the objects in the game will be set as a FLA. The same can be done for a game in Java or JavaScript. ...I am writing the world's simplest
